A hello from Broomfield!

Hello everyone

Well the weather has certainly been very mixed and at times very windy. This could be good weather for kite flying. My challenge this week therefore for those that want to try it—is to make a kite.

People flew the first kites about 3,000 years ago, probably in China. These kites were strips of bamboo covered with silk. Later, scientists used kites to study weather.

In some countries 'kite fights' are held, in which many people gather and fly kites and try to snag each other's kites or cut the other kite down.

Many of you will no doubt be looking forward to football re-appearing on our screens as the Premier League restarts this week. It will be a bit strange to watch however as they are playing behind closed doors. Some countries have put cardboard people in the stands to make it look more normal but I imagine it will be very quiet.

Things are starting to return to normal again with many more shops opening. There will be social distancing in place and many will be restricting numbers in store but it is good to know that we can start to visit the shops again. My local high street has boxes marked outside each shop with little circles on the pavement showing where you can stand. For many businesses they will have looked forward to this day for a while. Personally I am just waiting for the hairdressers to open as I am starting to feel like an Afghan Hound!

Keep up your good work and have a go at the kite challenge. Also please keep uploading your work so that we can all share it on our website.

Your teachers have chosen their Stars of the week.

A hello from Broomfield!

Messages for families...

Dear all

I am glad to see the return of some sunshine this week after the damp weather last week. We welcomed back many of our Foundation children today and they have been amazing so far. Lots of smiles and happy faces. They have adapted well to their new routines and I am very proud with how they have managed.

Now that we have more children back in school, we will be running a hot dinner option on Fridays. This week it is Quorn dippers with chips and ice-cream.

Like the LEGO marble maze challenge last week; this week I have set a kite making one. As we have had a lot of wind recently I thought it might be nice to make a kite—it's one of those things that we always used to do but seem to anymore. Last week I saw a Mum pushing her daughter around in a home made soap box go-kart made from pram wheels and a wooden pallet. Happy days...

We are currently planning for what next term might look like and how we manage transition for our pupils. We know that transition is vital and we will also be ensuring that our curriculum reflects the needs of our children many of which may not have been in school for several months. Any information about this will be shared as soon as possible.

As always please let us know if you need any more paper/books etc... or if you need to change a reading book and we will make sure we have things ready for you.

It is another virtual register for this week and the link is below (click on the register) and also provided in the email. Please fill it in. If your child has returned to school in FS/Y1/Y6 then there is no need unless you have children in other year groups. It is greatly appreciated if you can return it promptly.

Thank you again for your support—take care please. Miss Allison
